To the author's credit she's giving 50% of the profits to a charity that provides free wigs to chemotherapy patients. The book has both visual and written instructions, which I applaud, because I can seldom follow the visual ones in *any* book. The one thing I don't like is that the directions for some styles don't include what size scarves to use and as a total novice to scarf-tying, figuring this out is a chore. It would have been a five-star if it hadn't been for that.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Great guide to head wrapsBy HeidiI liked that this book has both diagrams and written instructions on how to do each wrap. I feel confident that I can do a wrap (and have it look nice!) by following these instructions. Some of them will likely take me more than 30 seconds to learn how to do them. But once the steps are learned, the wrap should be very quick to do!0 of 2 people found the following review helpful. all it had was a bunch of descriptions of possible ...By H. Testimonials "Kaye has volunteered her services at Cabrini Hospital in Melbourne, Victoria for over 6 years, 4 of which have been dedicated to establishing the hospital's free wig service. Hair loss during treatment can be a confronting time and the patient's first exposure to the wig room can be an emotional one. Cabrini's wig room provides our patients with much more than wigs. Head coverings and scarves are an essential resource for our patients during this time. The most common question asked is "how do I tie a head scarf?". Kaye's experience and approach helps make the process an easy and pleasant one. This book will bring a much needed resource to our patients and to many others. Her love for helping others to feel good about themselves shows in her dedication and passion in this book. I want to thank her for her dedication to help others." Vicki Durston Breast Cancer Service Coordinator Cabrini Health Brightways - Breast Cancer Service "Through her sensitive awareness to a need, Kaye Nutman has written 'Headscarves, Headwraps More'. In this book, she offers a practical and well-illustrated guide to creating various headgear. She ably shows, explains and guides the reader through to the final result. Kaye has worked for several years in a hospital setting, supporting clients through their various medical treatments. She has written many Biographies and engaging children's books and demonstrates a keen eye for colour, design and flair. I am one of a team of ladies, who has worked with Kaye in the 'Wigroom' - a hospital support facility. Here we offer both wigs and headwear to clients wishing to enhance their appearance. My background as an Educational Psychologist has reinforced in me, the importance that self-nurturing has on one's general wellbeing and in dealing with the many life challenges we face. I know this book will be of great service to you or your loved ones who wish to extend their headwear repertoire." Sue Perriman Educational Psychologist and Wig Room Volunteer Melbourne, Australia Kaye's volunteering experience in Cabrini's Wig Room in Brighton Victoria was the catalyst for her book. I have known Kaye as a fellow volunteer since the beginning of the enterprise, and have seen how her book has evolved. We have spoken enthusiastically and endlessly about scarves, their qualities and where Kaye sources them. She found op shops and general shops to be a good source of inexpensive ones with the occasional expensive one that she couldn't resist! I believe that Kaye's book will be a valuable addition for the clientele we see in the Wig Room, and for anyone else who loves scarves and wearing them." Ann Michod Wig Room Volunteer Cabrini Hospital, Brighton "Kaye fell in love with headwear from the moment we started up the "Wigroom". She has a knack for being creative and a desire to help clients feel great when they need it most. Her background in teaching has certainly helped with the process involved in getting this wonderful book together. I applaud her efforts and am sure many people will find her book a great resource."
